INTRODUCTION

This, the fifth report in the series "International Communist Movements," covers the period 1 May 1949 - 1 September 1949. The following comments point out the more significant developments noted during the current period.

MEETINGS

a. Labor

It is apparent that emphasis has been placed by the Communist Parties on a more efficient international coordination of their auxiliary organizations in the labor union field. The 10th Congress of Soviet Trade Unions (see S-Memo #53) was heavily attended by foreign delegates. The Trade Union Congress in Warsaw (1-5 June 1949) furnished another occasion for informal discussions, and the Second World Congress of the WFTU, preceded by a meeting of the WFTU Executive Committee (Milan, June 1949), assembled Communist labor leaders from all parts of the world. The emphasis on coordination of Communist dominated labor unions, however, is illustrated chiefly by the program launched by WFTU during the current period, involving the establishment of international trade departments of the WFTU. These trade departments are to be organized on a functional basis embracing national unions in related industries which may be affiliated with international labor organizations hostile to the now completely Soviet-Communist controlled WFTU. Several such international trade departments were created at constituent conferences held during the current period, viz., Fur and Leather Workers; Textile Workers; Metal Workers; Wood, Building, and Construction Workers; Miners; Seamen and Harbor Workers, and Teachers (see Meeting section). By the end of the year, departments for Petroleum, Transport (excluding maritime workers), Farming and Forest, Food, Post and Telegraph, Radio and Chemical Industries are to be established. Whether or not these latter departments will be founded at "constituent conferences" or in a more informal fashion is not known at present. The importance, however, of reporting on "constituent conferences" similar to those held during the current period, is emphasized. The new international trade departments may play a major role in the organization and support of international strike movements directed against the Western economy.

b. Peace

The organizational effectiveness of the international peace campaign appeared to decline. An All-Union Conference of the Partisans of Peace (also referred to as "Congress of the Friends of the Soviet Union") was held in Moscow in August 1949, and several foreign delegates attended. No other international meeting of significance was held. Efforts to convene the long postponed Peace Congress for Latin America were directed toward Mexico City where a Continental Congress finally came off in September 1949 without appreciable propaganda effects.

c. National Congresses and Conferences

The 9th National Congress of CP Czechoslovakia (Prague, May 1949) was the most important Party affair during the period covered. It was distinguished by the presence of G. MALENKOV, member of the Politburo/CPSU; SUSLOV, member of the Secretariat/CPSU, and P. YUDIN, presumably still chief editor of the Cominform Journal. Unconfirmed reports claimed that a Cominform meeting was held at the occasion of the Congress but no substantiating evidence was obtainable. In its overt pronouncements, the Congress seemed to be less concerned with matters affecting the international Communist movement than with the internal affairs of CP Czechoslovakia.

Several Congresses were held in Latin America (Brazil, Ecuador, Colombia), but their international significance appeared to be reduced furnishing an occasion to bring together a few Latin American leaders -- there were no delegates from other continents.

There are no indications at present that CPSU is ready to convene its long overdue 19th Party Congress. It is amusing that CPSU, a stickler for "democratic centralism" when it comes to foreign Parties, disregards Party democracy at home.

d. Cominform Meetings

Several Cominform meetings were rumored but none are believed to have been held.

TRAVEL MOVEMENTS

The volume of individual movements increased considerably during the current period. One thousand one hundred forty-one (1141) items were recorded as compared with six hundred fifty-seven (657) items in the last report (S-Memo #53). However, this increase concerns overt travel only, and illustrates merely a more extensive representation of various Parties at international meetings. (See, for instance, the travel of delegates from the USSR to the various constituent conferences of the WFTU trade departments).

a. Travel to the USSR

The influx of foreign Communists into the USSR decreased. The May Day Celebrations, the Pushkin Anniversary, (June 1949), and the Moscow Peace Congress (August 1949) furnished the chief occasions for foreign delegates to visit the USSR overtly. However, the number of foreign visitors was comparatively small.

b. Soviet Delegates to National Congresses Abroad

The presence of M. A. SUSLOV at the 9th Congress of CP Czechoslovakia further supports the observation made in S-Memo #53 to the effect that SUSLOV, a member of the Secretariat/CPSU, may specialize in the direction of foreign Parties.

c. Travel to Prague

Prague continued to be the destination point for "unexplained" trips. During the current period, such trips originated particularly in Belgium and Denmark.

FUTURE MEETINGS

Some of the more important international meetings to be held in the near future are listed below:

Unification Congress of the Fighters for Freedom and Democracy, Warsaw, September 1949.

Second World Congress, WFDY, Budapest, September 1949.

Continental Congress for World Peace, Mexico City, September 1949.

World Congress for Human Rights, Prague, September 1949.

Executive Committee of International Organization of Journalists, Prague, September 1949.

15th National Congress CP Uruguay, Montevideo, September 1949.

4th Congress of International Democratic Lawyers Association, Moscow, October 1949.

Executive Board, WFTU, Peiping, November 1949.

21st National Congress, CP Great Britain, London, November 1949.

Conference of the Women of Asia (WIFA), Peiping, December 1949.
